

Claims

- [c1] A furniture distribution method, comprising:
displaying furniture in an environment where said furniture is employed as furniture; directing customers to visit the environment where said furniture is employed as furniture; and providing customers with a means to contact a manufacturer of said furniture displayed in the environment where said furniture is employed as furniture.
- [c2] The furniture distribution method of claim 1, wherein the environment where said furniture is employed as furniture is a bed and breakfast, a country inn, or a small hotel.
- [c3] The furniture distribution method of claim 1, wherein furniture producing entities are charged with said directing of customers to visit the environment where said furniture is utilized as furniture.
- [c4] The distribution method of claim 3, wherein the furniture producing entities are carpenters, craftsmen, artists, or manufacturers.
- [c5] The furniture distribution method of claim 1, wherein the Internet is the means to contact a manufacturer of said furniture displayed in the environment where said furniture is employed as furniture.
- [c6] The furniture distribution method of claim 1, further comprising linking said displaying furniture and said directing customers via link supporting entities such as saw mills, lumber yards freight forwarders, shippers, carriers, warehouses, educators, trade schools, Internet cafes, web sites, search engines, and information systems.
- [c7] The furniture distribution method of claim 1, wherein sales entities are charged with said displaying furniture, producing entities are charged with said directing customers, and supporting entities are charged with linking said displaying furniture and said directing customers.
- [c8] A furniture distribution method, comprising:

receiving contact information from sales entities, supporting entities, and producing entities in an information network;
receiving orders and payments from customers via the information network;
and connecting the customers with the producing entities via the information network;
wherein the supporting entities negotiate relationships with the sales entities and the producing entities for requests, purchases, payments, terms, expectations, or training.

- [c9] The furniture distribution method, as in claim 8, wherein the sales entities partake in training the concepts of selling furniture and replicas of antiques.
- [c10] The furniture distribution method, as in claim 8, wherein the producing entities establish a relationship for obtaining products, index existing furniture photographs, enhance or build Internet exposure for each individual producer, or enter each individual producer's history, references, existing relationships, and past successes.
- [c11] The furniture distribution method, as in claim 8, wherein the sales entities index existing furniture, link existing Internet photos to a database, or add detailed photographs of rooms.